

Anger is a normal human emotion and can sometimes help us feel protected, in control or ready to respond. You can use this worksheet to explore the role anger plays in your life, including the ways it helps and the challenges it may create. Understanding these patterns can help you make choices about how you want to respond to anger in the future.

What happens during or soon after anger?